Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 05 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers eventually clearing, chance of overnight fog.

This Evening and Tonight:
A rather cloudy evening ahead, with limited clear spells and scattered lingering showers. Skies clearing overnight with a chance of frost and fog. Cloud will then thicken from the west through the early hours. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:
Rain spreading east, persistent and heavy for a time, with strong gusty winds. Rain clearing later, with clearer spells and showery rain following. Staying rather windy and feeling cold. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Frosty start Tuesday. Turning very windy, with rain spreading east. Further showers or more prolonged rain likely Wednesday and Thursday, but also some brighter spells. Winds gradually easing.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.